

State Line Door Lift joins leading garage door professionals at an exclusive Repanels training in Charlotte, NC

KANSAS CITY, MO, UNITED STATES, December 1, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- State Line Door & Lift, a leading garage door installation and repair company serving the Kansas City metropolitan area, was among a select group of fewer than thirty garage door companies from across North America invited to attend an exclusive two-day Repanels and MyDoor training on October 23–24 at Sommer-USA headquarters in Charlotte, North Carolina.

The event provided attendees with firsthand experience of a revolutionary sectional garage door system developed through the collaboration of Repanels and MyDoor. State Line Door & Lift, an authorized Sommer dealer, traveled the farthest distance to participate in the hands-on sessions and was selected to provide early feedback as Repanels adapts its technology for U.S. homeowners and builders by proposing region-specific track design developed in partnership with one of the largest North American hardware producers and an enhanced European-style hardware system via MyDoor and DOCO.

The Repanels/DOCO sectional door system represents a complete rethinking of garage door design.

Key innovations include:

Enclosed vertical duplex extension springs, which enable full door operation even if one spring fails—greatly improving homeowner safety.

A stand-alone structural frame that remains stable despite foundation movement, preventing roller and track misalignment.

Reinforced track assemblies designed to resist accidental impact from vehicles or stored household items.

High-density insulated panels that enhance thermal efficiency and eliminate daylight gaps common in aging doors.

A security-grade locking mechanism that significantly improves protection against forced entry.

By establishing U.S. manufacturing operations in Georgia, Repanels expects to reduce costs and shipping times while tailoring product styles for both modern and traditional American architecture.

"It's rare to see a sectional door system that genuinely changes how we think about safety and durability," said Andrew Powell, Founder of State Line Door & Lift. "Repanels has built a product that not only protects homeowners but also simplifies long-term maintenance. We're excited to be part of bringing this innovation to Kansas City."

Stateline's participation reflects its ongoing commitment to introducing advanced, reliable products to the Midwest market and supporting technologies that reduce long-term service costs for homeowners.
