“martinwolf's guidance and counsel were instrumental throughout this entire process,” said Eric Jozwiak, Founder and President of Keystone. “Their team provided the expertise, insight, and trust needed to move efficiently from discussions to close, achieving a better outcome that aligns with our long-term goals.”

Named the 2024 NetSuite Breakthrough Solution Provider

Partner of the Year, Keystone delivers customized cloud solutions, including implementation, integration, custom development, and managed services. The company serves clients across complex industries, including manufacturing, distribution, and food & beverage. Following the acquisition, Keystone will serve as the foundation for Armanino's NetSuite practice, enhancing the firm's ability to deliver a broader range of ERP solutions to its clients.

“We are pleased to have successfully guided Keystone through this important transaction with Armanino,” said Seth Collins, martinwolf Managing Partner. “The market for technology-enabled accounting and ERP services businesses continues to see strong interest, and the martinwolf team works side by side with owners of these businesses to arrive at outcomes that meet their personal goals and the needs of employees and clients for future success.”
