Former Bethesda Producer launches independent video game publisher looking to help bring bold new ideas into the world. Providing marketing, business management, quality assurance, community growth, funding, and PR services to small teams making great games. Our mission is to help release great games at a reasonable price.

"We support fresh, dangerous, and disruptive games, and do it in a way that is favorable to the developers. We don't want to own your IP, we don't want to make your creative decisions, We just want to make your game a success. There is no corporate pageantry, just people creating art to make a living." - NoQuarter Software
