Stephen Lane, Founder and CEO of Propstore

in its upcoming winter Entertainment Memorabilia Live Auction. Taking place from December 5–7, 2025, the event will feature more than 1,300 rare and historic lots spanning film and television history.

HIGHLIGHTS INCLUDE:

Marking its 45th anniversary this year, Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back (1980) remains one of the most beloved chapters in the saga. Among the standout pieces featured in the auction is an original Rebel Pilot Helmet, one of only a handful created specifically for the film's production. This is the first time the piece has ever been offered at auction. It originates from Patricia Carr, Assistant Production Manager on the original trilogy, and carries a presale estimate of $264,000 - $528,000.

Also celebrating 45 years is Stanley Kubrick's The Shining (1980), a film that redefined psychological horror. Headlining the Kubrick lots is Jack Torrance's (Jack Nicholson) stunt axe, used during action sequences and scenes where actors were in close proximity to the blade. The prop comes to auction with an estimate of $66,000 - $132,000.

Turning 40 this year, The Goonies (1985) continues to capture the imaginations of adventurers and dreamers alike. Multiple exceptional pieces from the beloved family classic will be offered, led by Mikey's (Sean Astin) screen-matched map doubloon, seen in the pivotal scene where the gang aligns the lighthouse, rock, and restaurant to uncover One-Eyed Willy's treasure (est.

$52,800 - $105,600). Also featured is Data's (Ke Huy Quan) stunt trench coat, adorned with 24 colorful patches and personally autographed by the actor (est. $19,800 - $39,600).

Another cult favorite turning 40 is Pee-Wee's Big Adventure (1985), Tim Burton's feature film debut. Among the most whimsical items in the sale is Pee-Wee Herman's (Paul Reubens) bright red functional production-made bicycle—one of just 13 built for the film. It is estimated at $39,600 - $79,200.

The three-day Live Auction begins daily at 7:00 AM (PST). Global online, absentee, and telephone bidding is available throughout the three days.
