Serrala believes that this independent industry recognition reflects the strength and completeness of Serrala's cloud-based Accounts Payable solution. The Serrala AP platform is designed to automate and optimize the invoice capture, validation, and approval process, empowering finance teams to accelerate cash flow, reduce manual effort, and increase efficiency across the enterprise.

"This recognition from The Hackett Group® highlights Serrala as a relevant vendor in the Accounts Payable software market," said Matthew Pitcher, Product Director, Accounts Payable at Serrala. "Our AP solution, powered by advanced AI and analytics, is helping companies worldwide transform their payables operations with intelligent automation and cloud-native capabilities. We are proud to be recognized in this important space and of the measurable impact we deliver to organizations every day."

The Hackett Group® evaluated vendors based on a comprehensive set of criteria across critical capabilities for accounts payable software. Serrala's inclusion reflects its long-standing expertise in AP automation, built on over 40 years of industry leadership, combined with innovative cloudbased technology.

Serrala's AP solution also features configurable reports, flexible BI integration, and tools for personalized data exploration, enabling organizations to proactively manage working capital and financial planning.
