

Dr. Anelia Sutton Releases Public Report Highlighting the Growing Demand for Practical Legal Education Through LawEd™

BALTIMORE, MD, UNITED STATES, November 21, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Mission Possible University founder Dr. Anelia Sutton has released a new public report outlining the increasing demand for accessible, practical legal education in the United States through the LawEd™ model.

The report includes enrollment data, student experiences, and summarized findings from educational materials currently available on the University's public platforms.

New Report Shows Strong Engagement With Practical Legal Learning

The newly published report highlights:

26,000+ enrolled students in Mission Possible University

Significant engagement with introductory LawEd™ lessons

Recurring student feedback emphasizing confidence and improved understanding of legal processes

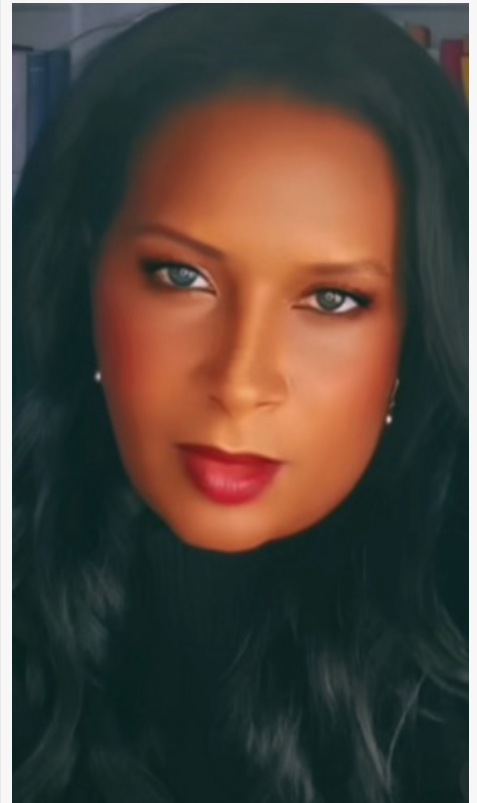

A rising interest in community-based legal literacy resources

LawEd™, coined by Dr. Sutton as the short-code for Law Education, provides simplified explanations of legal rights and systems intended for the general public.

"Many individuals are seeking clear, practical information that helps them understand everyday legal situations," Dr. Sutton said. "This report shows that people value direct, accessible instruction."
