Key Market Drivers:

The market growth is fueled by the material's notable advantages in construction, as well as its expanding application across industries such as paints, furniture, textiles, and automotive. However, stringent government regulations and fluctuating raw material prices pose challenges. Meanwhile, advancements in waste management technologies offer fresh growth opportunities for the market.

Segment Insights:-

By Form:

Powder:

- Dominated the market in 2020 with over half of the total share and is expected to retain its leading position through 2030. Its widespread use in glazing and particleboard flooring lamination drives this dominance.

Liquid:

- Forecast to record the highest CAGR of 6.8% during the period, supported by increasing usage in laminates, surface coatings, wood adhesives, and molding compounds.

By Application:-

Laminates:

- Held the largest share in 2020 more than two-fifths of the market due to significant demand in renovation and furniture applications, particularly in residential construction.

Surface Coatings:

- Expected to post the fastest CAGR of 7.0% through 2030, driven by rising usage in aerospace, auto refinishing, metal can-coating, paper coatings, and furniture finishing.

Regional Analysis

- The Asia-Pacific region, followed by Europe and North America, accounted for the highest market share in 2020, driven by rapid industrialization and booming construction activities. The region is projected to maintain its dominance throughout the forecast period.

- Meanwhile, the LAMEA region is set to experience the fastest CAGR of 8.1%, fueled by strong growth in the automotive and construction sectors.
