In partnership with the Pima Council on Aging (PCOA), the company is donating three complete HVAC systems, including equipment, labor, and installation, to local senior residents in need of safe and reliable heating and cooling.

The initiative, part of Done Rite Services' ongoing community commitment, aims to support vulnerable seniors facing health and safety risks due to extreme desert temperatures. Selected recipients were identified through PCOA's assistance programs, which connect local residents with essential resources during times of hardship.

“Reliable heating and cooling shouldn't be a luxury; it's a basic need, especially for seniors who are most vulnerable in Arizona's climate," said Dana McGaheran, Media Manager for Done Rite Services. "Our team is committed to serving Tucson by serving others, and this partnership allows us to provide comfort, dignity and peace of mind to neighbors who need it most."

This year is Done Rite Services' first year of donating full HVAC systems, reinforcing the company's continued mission to serve the Tucson community beyond traditional service calls.
