Our new mixed-size assortments give customers a practical path to better packaging fit, steadier costs, and simpler operations, all based on what we’ve heard from teams managing daily fulfillment.”

CEO

mixed-size case assortments are now a standard option across key lines of its bulk boxes for shipping. The update gives operations teams a practical way to right-size outbound packaging, reduce dimensional (DIM) weight exposure, and simplify inventory without over-buying any single size. The assortments are available immediately through the company’s Box Bargains catalog.

Why mixed-size case assortments now

E-commerce and omnichannel brands continue to balance cost control with customer experience. A frequent bottleneck is the “one-size shortfall”: teams either run too few sizes—leading to excess void fill and higher DIM fees—or carry too many, complicating pick/pack and storage. Mixed-size cases address both issues by bundling complementary, high-velocity sizes that cover standard order profiles without forcing separate case purchases for each dimension.

Right-sizing is also a lever for reducing damage and advancing sustainability. Better fit means fewer crushed panels, less void fill, and smaller overall package volumes—factors that can lower re-ship rates and emissions associated with shipping unnecessary air.

What The Boxery is introducing

- Standardized mixed-size case assortments: curated packs of complementary corrugated sizes designed around standard SKUs and order mixes.

- Coverage from mailers to heavy-duty cartons: options spanning light apparel and accessories through denser, fragile, or multi-item orders; double-wall choices available in select assortments.
- Bulk economics, fewer stockouts: value pricing via the Box Bargains catalog helps stabilize per-shipment packaging cost while reducing the number of distinct cases a warehouse must replenish.
- Sustainability-minded materials: recyclable corrugated constructions, enabling mono-material disposal and simplified compliance reporting.
- Fast availability: in-stock assortments with quick-ship fulfillment to support seasonal volume and promotions.

Assortments are designed for practical shelf fit and clear slotting labels so packers can quickly choose the best-fit box and avoid oversizing. The Boxery will continue expanding the assortment library as it receives customer feedback from peak season and new product launches.

Operational benefits at a glance

- Lower DIM risk: a greater likelihood of selecting the smallest compliant carton for each order profile.
- Reduced material waste: less reliance on void fill and smaller package volumes.
- Simplified inventory: fewer distinct cases to track and replenish.
- Damage mitigation: better fit supports product integrity and customer experience.
- Peak readiness: in-stock assortments support surges without rush substitutes.
