Chameleon has quickly become one of the most advanced and fastest-growing platforms in dealership technology. Its product suite provides dealership groups with actionable insights, automation, and better operational control across fixed operations. Built on cloud-native, serverless architecture and recognized as a Microsoft Start Up Tier-4 company, Chameleon offers enterprise-grade security, speed, and scalability.

“Fixed operations drive the majority of dealership profitability, yet the tools supporting that side of the business haven't changed in decades,” said Beau Starkel, Founder of Starkel Capital and former fixed-ops industry operator. “Chameleon’s platform closes that gap instantly, giving operators clarity, precision, and accountability in ways the industry has never had. We’re excited to support their next stage of growth.”

Chameleon’s executive leadership brings deep fixed-ops expertise and modern engineering discipline. “We built Chameleon on a simple belief: facts over feelings. Dealerships deserve smarter technology, deeper insights, and stronger fixed ops driven by data, not opinions,” said Jim Bernasek, co-founder and CEO of Chameleon Limited. “Partnering with Starkel Capital gives us the resources to scale faster and expand our impact across the dealership community.”

Chameleon’s results are reflected not only in its technology, but in the measurable outcomes achieved for its clients. “Their meticulous attention to detail and efficiency were truly unmatched, leading to a remarkable $52.81 hourly labor rate increase within a mere 21 days,” said Joe Metcalf, Fixed Operations Director, Farris Auto Group. “This outstanding achievement speaks volumes about the dedication and skill of the team at Chameleon, and we look forward to expanding their services to more of our locations.”
