

Girls Find Girls by Yingxiao Ouyang Wins Silver in A' Mobile Technology Awards

Innovative app quantifies female presence and encourages women to pursue their careers, earning prestigious design recognition.

COMO, CO, ITALY, November 27, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The A' Design Award, a highly respected award in the field of mobile design, has announced Yingxiao Ouyang as a winner in the Mobile Technologies, Applications and Software Design category for the innovative app "Girls Find Girls." This prestigious recognition highlights the significance of the design within the mobile industry, positioning it as a noteworthy achievement that aligns with and advances industry standards and practices.

"Girls Find Girls" addresses a critical need within the mobile industry by providing a solution to the lack of female representation in certain careers. The app leverages live data, advanced insights, and women's communities to offer young girls and adult females a holistic view of industries, empowering them to make informed career decisions. By quantifying female presence and encouraging women to pursue their passions, "Girls Find Girls" delivers practical benefits to users, the industry, and stakeholders, emphasizing utility and innovation.

What sets "Girls Find Girls" apart is its female-centered design approach. Rather than treating women as a hidden secondary gender, the app encourages females to better understand themselves and become the best version of themselves. The data charts are thoughtfully designed to showcase female progress without using male presence as a benchmark. By leveraging female progress, the app inspires young girls who hesitate to choose their passionate careers and supports adult females struggling with hidden gender bias.

Girls Find Girls

The recognition from the A' Mobile Technologies, Applications and Software Design Award serves as motivation for Yingxiao Ouyang and her team to continue striving for excellence and innovation. This win has the potential to inspire future designs and influence industry standards, fostering further exploration and advancement in the field of mobile design that empowers and supports women.
