Advancing Clean Energy Innovation

The 2025 Clean Energy Awards highlight a global community of innovators working to accelerate the shift toward renewable and sustainable energy systems. This year's winners demonstrate how practical clean energy solutions can be deployed at scale, from advanced renewable fuels and high performance storage systems to customer oriented solar and installation services that support communities and businesses.

Many of the entries showcased forward looking approaches that reduce emissions, improve system efficiency and expand access to clean energy across a broad range of applications. These advances contribute to long term energy resilience by helping industries reduce carbon output while improving operational reliability.

Altaris Business Awards recognises the commitment shown across all winning and finalist organisations. Their achievements continue to shape the future of clean energy and support a more sustainable global energy landscape.
