Why This Work Matters in 2025

DEI is facing unprecedented rollbacks across the U.S., with over a dozen states introducing or enacting legislation that restricts how businesses and public institutions can talk about race, gender, and identity. In this climate, many companies are freezing initiatives, dropping job titles, or staying silent out of fear.

"The companies that thrive in the next five years will be those that stay true to their people—even when it's uncomfortable," Windmeyer explains. "That requires tools, not just ideals."
