inspection demands and growing training gaps, BLR® has enhanced its EHS Hero® platform with curated Learning Tracks—organized by industry, role, and hazard—to help safety professionals deliver accurate, OSHA-aligned training faster.

“Safety leaders are constantly balancing regulatory demands with real-world risk management. These curated tracks take the guesswork out of training by guiding managers directly to what’s required—and what’s effective—for their teams.” Tim Fagan, EHS Managing Editor at BLR

Each track includes required and recommended training materials, tailored to over 65 specific roles across high-risk sectors like construction, motor carriers, hazardous waste, hazmat transportation, healthcare, and warehousing. With filters by content type and language, safety managers can easily plan and deliver training that meets regulatory requirements without redundancy or delays.

This enhancement reinforces BLR’s commitment to providing safety leaders with practical tools to reduce risk, simplify compliance, and align with real-world workplace needs. Whether onboarding new hires or conducting refresher training, safety managers can now deliver targeted instructor-led training that aligns with OSHA standards and reflects real-world job hazards.

All content within the Learning Tracks is regularly updated as part of EHS Hero’s continuous review process to stay aligned with evolving standards. This commitment to accuracy and ease of use is why the platform remains a top-rated solution by G2, Environment + Energy Leader, and thousands of safety professionals nationwide.
