Senad Dizdarevic

About the Book Series

The 4-part series presents what the author characterizes as four distinct types of evidence: scientific evidence, logical evidence, ontological evidence, and experiential evidence. Each volume in the series addresses a different aspect of the central thesis.

According to Dizdarevic, the series distinguishes itself from existing atheist literature by presenting concrete evidence rather than philosophical argumentation alone. The books are available on Amazon in both e-book and paperback formats.

Platform and Resources

The website serves as a central repository for articles, resources, and information related to the book series. Content on the platform covers topics including religion, atheism, faith deconstruction, and philosophy.

Dizdarevic describes the target audience as including atheists seeking intellectual resources, religious believers questioning their faith, and individuals interested in evidence-based philosophy. The platform includes written content, book access, and community networking features.

Author Background

Senad Dizdarevic is an atheist author and journalist based in Ljubljana, Slovenia. In addition to the book series, Dizdarevic writes articles covering religion, atheism, philosophy, and personal development. The author states that the project was developed to address what was perceived as a gap in available resources for atheist education and faith deconstruction support.

The book series represents Dizdarevic's first major published work in the atheism genre. The author indicates that additional content and resources will be added to the platform on an ongoing basis throughout 2025 and beyond.

Looking Ahead

The launch marks the beginning of what Dizdarevic describes as a long-term project to build
