since 2008, focusing on serving homeowners in Essex County and selected parts of Union, Morris, and Passaic counties.

By concentrating on a regional service area, the company is able to offer responsive scheduling, local knowledge of soil and climate conditions, and streamlined project coordination. Whether a homeowner in suburban Essex County or in one of the neighbouring counties, the firm is able to deliver local-market expertise.

Workforce and Equipment Capacity

The firm maintains a dedicated workforce of 15 skilled professionals. This team is supported by a substantial inventory of professional-grade equipment that enables the company to manage both small-scale installations (such as a backyard patio or deck) as well as more extensive projects (such as property-wide landscape redesign or retaining-wall system).

Background checks on all employees contribute to client peace of mind, reinforcing the company's commitment to reliable and trustworthy service. This operational structure allows Charles and Son to address client needs with the appropriate level of staffing, equipment, and project oversight.

Project Process and Client Experience

Charles and Son Construction & Landscaping emphasises a structured project process designed to manage expectations, timelines, and outcomes. Key aspects of the process include:

1. Initial consultation and site review: Understanding the homeowner's objectives, site constraints, aesthetic preferences, budget, and timeline.
2. Design development: Use of computerised design tools to illustrate proposed landscape, hardscape, and lighting elements, helping clients visualise final results and make informed decisions.
3. Proposal and project planning: Clearly defined scope of work, schedule, materials selection, equipment allocation, and permit coordination (when required).
4. Construction and installation: Skilled crews working with professional-grade equipment to execute the project from demolition/clearing through final installation.
5. Quality control and cleanup: Ensuring the site is left in a clean, safe condition and that installed systems (lighting, drainage, masonry, plants) perform as expected.
6. Follow-up and maintenance planning: Advising the homeowner on the care of new installations and helping plan any ongoing maintenance required to preserve the investment.

This disciplined approach supports the company's stated goal of delivering "creative landscapes" and a "reputation for the highest quality in workmanship."

Why This Matters to Homeowners

Outdoor living has become a meaningful extension of the home, particularly in regions such as Northern New Jersey, where seasonal weather allows for garden, patio, and deck usage across a broad portion of the year. Integrating design, construction, and system support (such as drainage and lighting) into a single contractor helps minimise coordination issues and avoid the pitfalls of segmented subcontractors.

By choosing a full-service provider like Charles and Son Construction & Landscaping, a homeowner gains a partner that can handle everything from initial design through installation, from grading and drainage to final lighting and finishing touches. The regional focus means responsiveness, familiarity with local permitting and materials, and service continuity.

Moreover, the company's staffing and equipment capacity mean that whether the job is a modest deck or a full backyard landscape overhaul, the same professionalism is applied. And the added assurance of employee background checks reinforces the company's commitment to reliability and trust, a non-negotiable when contractors are working on residential properties.

Ongoing Commitment and Reputation

Since 2008, Charles and Son Construction & Landscaping has built a track record serving homeowners in Essex County and the surrounding market. During that time, the firm has evolved to incorporate advanced design tools, expanded its installation and construction capability, and maintained a consistent service standard across all project types.

While the market for landscape, hardscape, and outdoor living services is competitive, the company's proactive emphasis on quality workmanship, full-service integration, and local service delivery distinguishes its offering. Prospective clients benefit from a single point of contact through every stage of the project, making outdoor-space investment both more predictable and less disruptive.
