The general aviation market is driven by various factors such as rise in demand for efficient and flexible air transportation solutions. However, high costs of aircraft ownership & operation and stringent regulations & certification requirements are anticipated to hamper the growth of the market during the forecast period. Moreover, expansion of air taxi and charter services and development of electric and hybrid-electric aircraft bodies are expected to offer potential opportunities for the global general aviation market during the forecast period.

Recent Development:

In March 2024, Yingling Aviation, a prominent provider of maintenance, repair, and overhaul (MRO) services, as well as fixed-base operation (FBO) services in the U.S., announced its acquisition of Mid-Continent Aviation Services (MCAS) . MCAS is also a full-service MRO located at Wichita's Dwight D. Eisenhower National Airport (ICT) . The financial details of the transaction were not disclosed.

In February 2024, Leonardo received helicopter orders from the Middle East and India during Heli-Expo 2023. These orders, totaling 'almost' 40 helicopters, contribute to the company's sales contracts for more than 50 AW09 next-generation single-engine helicopters for customers globally.
