A global leader in hazardous drug safety technology, EQUASHIELD® designed the Mundus system as the industry's first workflow-integrated hazardous drug compounder and the first modular, tabletop unit engineered to operate in existing biosafety cabinets. By combining advanced automated compounding with EQUASHIELD's proven Closed System Transfer Devices (CSTDs), the system ensures accurate compounding and enhances staff and patient protection by preventing hazardous drug exposure and blocking microbial ingress during compounding.

“Implementing the Mundus Compounding System is truly transformative for our oncology operations,” said David Benedict, Chief Operating Officer, Chartwell Pharmacy. “By combining advanced workflow management with a fully closed hazardous drug compounding platform, we are reducing exposure risks for our personnel, minimizing medication errors, and streamlining our compounding process. It’s a major step toward redefining standards in chemotherapy production.”

The Mundus Compounding System interfaces directly with Chartwell’s electronic medical record (EMR) system to receive patient-specific orders and uses end-to-end barcode verification to confirm all drugs, diluents, and compounder operations. Automated fluid transfers are performed with $\pm 3\%$ accuracy, supported by three high-resolution cameras and advanced image-processing to ensure both drug selection and all volume measurements. The system also generates complete, reviewable digital compounding records for every dose.

“Chartwell Pharmacy is uniquely positioned to serve as the nation’s first implementation site for our innovative Mundus Compounding System,” said Dennis Schneider, Director of Automation Systems, EQUASHIELD. “Chartwell’s unwavering commitment to innovation—and its exceptional clinical team dedicated to the highest levels of accuracy and safety—made Chartwell the ideal partner. We are proud to collaborate with Chartwell in advancing world-class compounding technology built to enhance productivity, strengthen safety, and ensure regulatory compliance.”

Ahead of Chartwell’s ribbon-cutting event on November 18, EQUASHIELD trained more than 40 Chartwell pharmacists and pharmacy technicians to ensure seamless system adoption. Chartwell began compounding patient doses using the Mundus system in December 2025.
