ProInfoNet was officially incorporated on December 19, 1995. The company started out of Rogers’ home office in Maine and has since grown into a multi-state team supporting organizations across the country. ProInfoNet now has offices in Bangor and Portland to support increasing demand for hands-on technology consulting and project management.

“Thirty years in, we’re just getting started,” said Jeff Rogers, Vice President of Finance and

Operations. "Our focus is on smart, intentional growth: expanding our consulting team in Portland and taking on work that genuinely helps our customers and the communities they support."

As ProInfoNet enters its fourth decade, the company remains focused on serving as the trusted advisor its customers rely on to navigate complex technology and connectivity challenges. The team expects continued growth across both offices as demand for consulting services increases nationwide.
