

Mixed Up Clothing Launches Two-Day Pop-Up at Nordstrom Century City Celebrating Culture, Community & Creativity

Multicultural kidswear brand brings new global-inspired drops, cultural storytelling, and exclusive in-person pieces to the Nordstrom floor this weekend

LOS ANGELES , CA, UNITED STATES,
December 10, 2025 /

EINPresswire.com/ -- Mixed Up Clothing is officially bringing its vibrant, culture-forward kidswear collection to Nordstrom Century City for a special weekend pop-up experience. Known for celebrating the cultures, textiles, and stories that shape families and communities, Mixed Up Clothing is debuting new pieces and immersive shopping moments that bring its mission of education, inclusion, and cultural pride directly to the retail floor.

This milestone collaboration was made possible through the support of The Folklore, whose commitment to championing emerging Black and Brown brands continues to open doors across the retail landscape. Their work in elevating underrepresented designers and advocating for real representation in the market plays a vital role in ensuring that brands like Mixed Up Clothing have the opportunity to be discovered and celebrated.

“Support like this matters—especially now,” said Sonia Smith-Kang, Founder of Mixed Up Clothing. “Consumers are choosing to shop with their values, to support brands with purpose and heart. We’re honored to bring our multicultural story to Nordstrom and invite families to experience the joy and meaning behind our designs.”

Throughout the weekend, visitors will enjoy interactive and meaningful touchpoints that highlight the brand’s cultural roots and creative inspirations, including:

- New global-inspired kidswear drops
- Story cards detailing the cultural influences behind each print
- Special photo moments for families
- Exclusive pieces available only at the pop-up
- Meet-the-founder moments and opportunities to shop small in person
