

Christian Recovery Organization Expands From Financial Assistance to Long-Term, AI-Guided Sobriety Support

A Christian recovery mission expands nationwide using AI-driven, mobile-guided support for long-term abstinence sobriety.

ATLANTA, GA, UNITED STATES,
December 13, 2025 /
EINPresswire.com/ -- HopeLinc.org
Announces Mission Shift to Reach
Thousands More Through a Faith-
Based Recovery Ecosystem

Cumming, GA — HopeLinc.org, a Christian-based recovery organization, today announced a significant evolution of its mission—expanding from a provider of financial assistance for treatment and sober-living entry to delivering a 180- to 365-day, faith-integrated recovery program accessible entirely through participants’ mobile phones.

This transformation enables HopeLinc to reach thousands more individuals struggling with addiction, extending support far beyond initial treatment admission while remaining grounded in Christian principles of hope, accountability, and restoration.

“For years, HopeLinc helped people get into treatment,” said Daniel Francis, Founder and CEO of Orbiit Services Inc. “But recovery doesn’t happen in a moment—it happens day by day. As a Christian organization, we felt called to walk alongside people longer, more consistently, and in a way that integrates faith with real-world support.”

From Financial Aid to Long-Term Recovery Navigation

Historically, HopeLinc focused on removing financial barriers that prevented individuals and families from accessing treatment and sober living. While impactful, leadership recognized a persistent gap: recovery often faltered after admission, especially between appointments, meetings, and moments of accountability.

HopeLinc's updated mission addresses this gap by providing a 180–365 day guided recovery experience, navigated through participants' mobile phones and powered by the Orbiit Recovery Platform.

Beyond an App: Helping Participants
“See Their Feelings”

Daniel Francis, CEO Orbiit Services Inc

More than a traditional app, the HopeLinc Recovery Ecosystem uses AI-driven insights derived from phone interaction and engagement data to help participants better understand what is happening beneath the surface. This approach allows individuals to quite literally “see their feelings”—transforming behavioral patterns into meaningful, actionable insight.

Our mission is simple,” said Francis. “To help more people experience lasting abstinence sobriety—and to do it in a way that honors both neuroscience and faith.”

The platform personalizes each participant's recovery path in real time, adjusting guidance, education, and next steps based on engagement trends rather than relying solely on self-reported feelings.

Faith Integrated by Design

As a Christian organization, HopeLinc intentionally integrates faith into its recovery model. Participants may ask the AI at any time to provide Biblical-based materials, including scripture, devotionals, reflections, and faith-aligned encouragement to support their recovery journey.

“This is not forced content—it's available when people want it,” Francis explained. “Faith is deeply personal. Our goal is to make Biblical wisdom accessible, supportive, and relevant whenever a participant seeks it.”

Built on the Orbiit Recovery Platform

HopeLinc’s expanded mission is built on the Orbiit Recovery Platform, a clinically informed, AI-driven ecosystem designed to support abstinence-based sobriety through continuous engagement and accountability.

Key innovations include:

AI-guided personalization using real-world engagement data

Long-duration recovery support (180–365 days)

Mobile-first access, removing geographic and logistical barriers

On-demand Biblical resources, alongside practical recovery tools

Objective engagement insights that identify risk before relapse occurs

Together, these innovations create a scalable yet deeply personal recovery experience—supporting both behavioral change and spiritual growth.

A Scalable, Faith-Centered Path to Abstinence Sobriety

With this mission shift, HopeLinc moves from helping dozens at a time to supporting thousands simultaneously, while preserving individualized guidance through intelligent technology and faith-based resources.
