The report analyzes user behavior, session patterns and satisfaction data from hundreds of tarot consultations conducted in 2025.

NEW YORK, NY, UNITED STATES, December 16, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Astroideal has

This report was created to bring data and transparency to a sector that has traditionally lacked measurable insights."

Enrique Martínez, Founder of Astroideal

released its first comprehensive data report analyzing user behavior and engagement patterns within online tarot services throughout 2025. The study is based on anonymized, aggregated data collected from real consultations conducted on the platform over a twelve-month period.

The 2025 Online Tarot User Behavior Report examines how users interact with digital tarot services, including session frequency, consultation duration, timing preferences, and satisfaction indicators. According to the findings, user engagement is driven primarily by clarity of interaction, perceived transparency, and session continuity rather than consultation length alone.

The report highlights several notable trends observed during 2025. Usage peaks were consistently recorded during evening hours, while shorter, focused sessions showed higher satisfaction rates than longer consultations. Repeat usage was strongly correlated with clear session structures and post-session feedback mechanisms, suggesting that user trust is built through consistency and transparency rather than volume of interaction.

Astroideal compiled the report using first-party platform data, ensuring that all insights are derived from real user behavior rather than surveys or third-party estimates. All personal data was fully anonymized and aggregated prior to analysis, in line with European data protection standards.

Unlike many reports in the spiritual and wellness sector, which often rely on anecdotal evidence, the Astroideal study aims to provide a data-driven perspective on a traditionally opaque market. By focusing on measurable behavioral patterns, the report offers rare insight into how users engage with online tarot services in practice.
