“After hearing from countless residents of District 65 who want a leader willing to stand up and deliver real results, I knew it was time to step forward,” said Seth Woodall. “District 65 has always been my home. It’s where I grew up, where my wife and I chose to raise our children, and where I have spent my career building up our community and fighting for people when it mattered most.

“I will be a fighter for Rockingham County, not for headlines or politics, but for this community,” Woodall continued. “As an attorney and business leader, I’ve spent decades making tough decisions, bringing people together, and building solutions that last. Rockingham County has enormous potential, and with principled leadership, practical experience, and a clear vision for the future, we can grow our economy, back our law enforcement and first responders, support our teachers, and ensure the next generation has more opportunity than the last. I’m running to serve and to move District 65 forward with strength and purpose.”
