About the Artist

Muhju is a Swiss architect and illustrator based in Zurich, best known for his distinctive artistic philosophy, Renaissance 2.0. Drawing inspiration from antiquity, including ancient Greece and Rome, as well as the Renaissance and Baroque eras, he reimagines classical grandeur through a digital-first lens.

Working across 3D modeling tools, design pipelines, and 2D digital painting, Muhju synthesizes traditional aesthetics with contemporary techniques, creating works that feel both timeless and distinctly modern.

His art has been exhibited globally in cities such as Rome, Milan, New York, Seoul, Paris, and Bangkok. His work has also drawn the attention of notable patrons, including the historic Medici Family of Florence, who have collected his pieces and commissioned original designs.
