

Virtuix Announces CES Presence and Collaboration with Pimax

AUSTIN, TX, UNITED STATES, January 5, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Virtuix, the developer of the Omni One full-body VR gaming system, today announced its presence at CES 2026, where it will be exhibiting in partnership with Pimax at Booth #14450. As part of the collaboration, Virtuix will demonstrate Omni One using Pimax's new Dream Air headset, highlighting the system's seamless compatibility with PC VR and SteamVR games.

Omni One is designed to work with any PC VR headset compatible with SteamVR, giving users access to hundreds of PC VR titles while enabling unrestricted, full-body movement inside virtual worlds. When paired with Pimax's Dream Air headset, the system delivers a premium, high-fidelity PC VR experience that pushes immersion to the next level.

"CES is the perfect stage to showcase what's possible when cutting-edge VR headset technology meets true full-body movement," said Jan Goetgeluk, CEO of Virtuix. "Our partnership with Pimax underscores Omni One's broad compatibility across the PC VR ecosystem. Pairing Omni One with the Dream Air headset creates a deeply immersive experience that redefines how gamers move inside virtual worlds."

"Dream Air was built to deliver uncompromising visual clarity in an ultra-lightweight form factor," said Robin Weng, Founder of Pimax. "With its 8K resolution and ergonomic design, pairing Dream Air with Omni One creates a uniquely immersive PC VR experience—combining stunning
