EINPresswire.com/ -- The Junk Medics, a San Diego-based junk removal and cleanout company known for its compassionate, hands-on approach, has officially opened a new location at 5171 Baltimore Dr, La Mesa, CA 91942. The expansion strengthens the company's presence in East County and reflects a long-standing commitment to the community it serves.

The new La Mesa location will support a full range of residential and commercial services, including estate cleanouts, hoarding and high-sensitivity cleanouts, downsizing assistance for seniors, move-out and eviction cleanouts, construction and renovation debris removal, office and commercial cleanouts, and responsible recycling and donation coordination. The Junk Medics is frequently called in during time-sensitive or emotionally complex situations, where professionalism, discretion, and care are essential.

Alongside the opening, The Junk Medics has joined the San Diego East County Chamber of Commerce, further formalizing its role as a locally invested business. The decision signals more than a standard business milestone—it represents a return to the area where the company's founders grew up and began building their lives and careers.

East County has long been central to the The Junk Medics story. It is where the founders faced early challenges, rebuilt from difficult circumstances, and committed to building a business grounded in reliability, integrity, and service. Establishing a permanent location in La Mesa allows the company to operate closer to the neighborhoods and clients that shaped its values.

“Joining the Chamber isn’t just about networking,” the company shared in a statement. “It’s about showing up for the community that helped shape who we are, supporting other local businesses, and continuing to give back in meaningful ways.”

With the La Mesa expansion, The Junk Medics aims to increase availability for East County residents and business owners while maintaining the personalized, respectful service that has defined the brand. The company plans to actively participate in Chamber initiatives, collaborate with fellow members, and remain visible and accessible within the local business community.

Community members, Chamber partners, and local business owners are encouraged to connect with the The Junk Medics team at their new location. As the company puts it, the goal remains simple: show up when people need help most, handle difficult situations with care, and leave every space better than it was found.
