

California Creative Solutions Inc. Reinforces Its Commitment to Social Responsibility Through CSR Efforts in Costa Rica

POWAY, CA, UNITED STATES, December 24, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ --

California Creative Solutions Inc. (CCS), a global technology group that unifies its core entities, CCS Global Tech, Helm360, and CCS Learning Academy, today reaffirmed its deep-rooted commitment to corporate social responsibility (CSR) and community development.

Throughout 2025, CCS Global Tech's Costa Rica office led numerous CSR initiatives reflecting the organization's core value of giving back to society. These campaigns were designed to make meaningful contributions to local communities, promote education and environmental sustainability, and foster inclusivity across diverse social segments.

Highlights of 2025 CSR Initiatives

These initiatives reflect CCS Global Tech's ongoing commitment to creating measurable, community-centered impact aligned with its core value of giving back to society.

□ Supporting vulnerable communities

In February, CCS contributed to Centro Casa del Reposo del Valle, a senior care center in Pérez Zeledón, helping provide critical support and resources to elderly individuals in need.

In March, the team extended its efforts to Hogar Emanuel, an association dedicated to the care of individuals with intellectual disabilities, ensuring continuity of essential services for those in vulnerable conditions.

□ Empowering women and advancing STEM education

In May, CCS partnered with the Universidad Nacional (UNA) for the “Women in STEM” initiative, where a CCS representative delivered a motivational talk and sponsored recognition awards for young women aspiring to build careers in science and technology.

Later in October, the organization supported both the International and High School Programming Tournaments hosted by UNA, with CCS team members participating as judges and sponsors. These activities underscored CCS’s long-standing advocacy for education, youth empowerment, and gender equity in technology.

□ Environmental awareness and sustainability

Commitment to the planet guided several initiatives, including “Recycling Day” and National Tree Day celebrations. Employees actively participated in recycling drives and tree-planting sessions aimed at fostering responsible environmental practices and ecological stewardship within the company and local communities.

□ Strengthening local partnerships and outreach

Throughout the year, CCS collaborated with REDISH, a nonprofit supporting individuals experiencing homelessness, by providing material donations and co-producing an awareness video in partnership with a local retail company. These efforts expanded REDISH’s visibility and community impact, creating a ripple effect of solidarity and compassion.

□ Cultural engagement and community health

To close the year, CCS embraced Costa Rica’s cultural spirit as an official sponsor of the Festival Luces del Valle parade, a cherished community event in Pérez Zeledón that celebrates unity and local heritage. This festival is one of the most recognized cultural celebrations in the southern region of Costa Rica, attracting up to approximately 60,000 attendees from Pérez Zeledón and surrounding communities across its activities. The parade and festivities receive national media coverage, including broadcast exposure through national TV, regional press, and digital news outlets, amplifying visibility beyond the local community and reinforcing CCS’s commitment to cultural engagement at a national level.

Additionally, CCS sponsored the Luces del Valle Athletic Race, promoting physical health, sports development, and active community participation for more than 600 runners.

“Our global vision of delivering technology excellence is matched by our local commitment to creating positive social impact. These CSR initiatives in Costa Rica go beyond individual community efforts – they reflect our belief that long-term business success must align with social progress. The passion of our employees and the partnerships we’ve built across LATAM truly embody that spirit of shared growth,” said Raminder Singh, Founder & Group CEO of CCS.
