Cecibon Restaurant partners with Uber Eats to launch JUMU Soup Tour, combining Haitian culinary tradition with transparent community meal donations in U.S.A..

MIAMI, FL, UNITED STATES, December 31, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Cecibon Restaurant, operating from Miami since 1984, today announced the launch of its JUMU Soup Tour, a nationwide initiative that combines Haitian culinary tradition with community nourishment through a partnership with Uber Eats. The program begins January 1, 2026, coinciding with Haitian Independence Day celebrations.

Cecibon's JUMU Tour launch at Haitian Compas Festival featuring a bowl of Jomou Soup

The initiative utilizes a transparent 1:1 model where each $15 Jomou soup ordered through Cecibon's Uber Eats listing generates an identical free meal for community distribution. Cities reaching 5,000 collective orders will receive a visit from the Cecibon food truck, with the tour launching at the Haitian Compas Festival on May 18, 2026.

You order JUMU, someone nearby gets some Jomou Soup. The transaction is visible from start to finish. And kids can learn about Haitian history while earning karate classes.”

Gery Cerenord

The Haitian Compas Festival—28 years of nonstop rhythm—kicks the whole tour off on May 18, 2026. To celebrate, they're giving one free spoon of jomou to every follower of record, turning 30,000 fans into the first army of eaters.

Jomou soup holds cultural significance as a UNESCO-recognized tradition historically consumed on January 1 to commemorate Haiti's 1804 independence. Cecibon has served this traditional dish for four decades from its Miami location.

Educational and Community Components

White Dragon Dojo, founded by six-time Florida martial arts champion Dr. Jerry Jones, has developed a complementary educational resource at Game.JoumouSoup.com. The free online program teaches Haitian history, with completion qualifying participants for martial arts instruction opportunities.

Real-Time Tracking

Community participation and impact are tracked in real time at joumousoup.com, providing transparency for all funded meals.
