Robert Murphy, who assumes the role of Owner & President, brings extensive leadership experience in cloud technology, engineering, artificial intelligence, software development, and enterprise-scale operations. Robert grew up contributing to the family business—learning fabrication, assembly, electrical systems, detailing, and even building early software and web tools that supported the company's growth.

As part of the transition, Bob Murphy will serve as a full-time advisor supporting manufacturing, engineering, and innovation, while Lois Murphy continues overseeing financial and operational continuity throughout the transition period.

Custom Coach Creations also confirmed that its longtime operations leader, James Fancher, Chief Operating Officer, will continue in his role.

"This company has grown because we believe in doing things the right way—no shortcuts, no compromises," said Fancher. "Working alongside Bob and Lois has been an honor, and I'm excited to continue that work with Robert. His vision brings new energy and modern innovation to the craftsmanship our customers depend on."
