TEL AVIV, ISRAEL, January 8, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Multi-talented singer-songwriter and composer Sharon Eitan is thrilled to announce the release of "Nothing Occurred (Remix)", the latest single from his ongoing remix series of the album Referrals and Talismans. Blending pop and rock elements, the track is out now on all major streaming platforms.

Originally recorded years ago in a low-budget session at Ralf Levitan's studio—featuring acclaimed guitarist Avi Singolda and Eitan on lead vocals—the album Referrals and Talismans was finally released last year. Now, Eitan is giving these songs a fresh makeover, remixing them individually and releasing each as a standalone single.

Eitan shares: "My lyrics often present wounded, isolated characters struggling to break free from real or imagined bonds—closeted gay men, silenced housewives, inhibited teenagers, aspiring artists fighting to be heard. Each song encapsulates its own micro-world, so I'm now approaching them individually."

"For these remixes, Eitan has embraced innovative AI tools to generate new vocal textures and reimagine the productions. "In some past projects, I've hired studio vocalists to record my music—especially when making demos for my musical theatre work," Eitan explains. "For these new remixes, I decided to experiment with AI tools to generate new vocal colours and reimagine the production. I feel that working with AI vocals is not altogether different from working with hired singers: in both cases, there's a balance to be found between imposing my own interpretation of a song and nurturing the vocalist's creative choice.
