NRB International Christian Media Convention

FEBRUARY 17-20 | NASHVILLE, TN

Eden Gordon Media and "The All-American Book Club" Look Ahead to NRB 2026 International Christian Media Convention

NRB is a unique group of people, united by purpose and message: to spread the life-changing truth of the Gospel of Jesus Christ through every electronic medium available. The annual NRB International Christian Media Convention is the largest nationally and internationally recognized event dedicated solely to assisting those in the field of Christian communications.

Troy A. Miller is the president and CEO of the National Religious Broadcasters Association (NRB), an organization dedicated to the protection of free speech and the ability to communicate Biblical truth nationwide—and beyond. NRB's member outreach touches every continent through Christian radio, television, the Internet, and other platforms. Miller has been at the helm of the organization since 2019 and has helped NRB, its members, and its affiliates navigate through a dynamic and ever-changing media landscape.

In a recent op-ed, Miller spoke to the downplaying of Christian persecution in the mainstream media: "Religious persecution isn't just a 'Christian issue.' It's a human-rights crisis that should pierce the heart of anyone who cares about justice and human dignity.... Across major outlets, reports soften the horror. They speak of 'clashes,' 'displacement,' or 'unrest.' Only rarely does anyone name this persecution for what it truly is. When a massacre is described as a 'skirmish,' or a deliberate campaign of violence as a 'conflict,' the victims are robbed of dignity, and truth itself is distorted. This is not about semantics. It's about how media framing shapes moral perception — and how, in this moment, Christians and citizen-journalists alike must demand honesty from the storytellers of our age." Brad Brandon is the founder and CEO of Across Nigeria, a ministry focused on spreading the Gospel, planting churches, discipling believers, and supporting persecuted Christians in Nigeria. Brandon served in pastoral ministry for more than 20 years before switching his focus to overseas missions in 2018. His work in Nigeria focuses on providing education and literacy to Muslim communities while simultaneously providing aid and relief to Christian communities suffering intense persecution for their faith.

In a recent press statement, Brandon praised the decisive action taken by President Trump on precision strikes against militants in Nigeria: "For well over a decade, Christians in Nigeria have been violently targeted by radical jihadi groups like ISWA and Boko Haram. On Christmas Day 2025, the United States military, in cooperation with the Nigerian government, executed a strategic series of airstrikes on several key ISWA strongholds in Northwest Nigeria.... I praise the ability of our military personnel who carried out the strikes and I fully support and appreciate President Trump's swift action and volition to help the many suffering Christians in Northern Nigeria."
