Products That Power Infrastructure and Global Commerce

The exhibition showcases a comprehensive range of products and solutions that underpin modern infrastructure and industrial growth.

The bitumen segment connects suppliers and buyers supporting highways, expressways, airports, ports, and urban road development, featuring conventional grades, modified solutions, emulsions, and specialty materials.

The petrochemicals and petroproducts segment highlights refined and value-added products essential to construction, manufacturing, and energy markets, enabling direct engagement between suppliers and global buyers.

The logistics and shipping segment complete the ecosystem, showcasing bulk and breakbulk shipping, storage and terminal infrastructure, tank containers, port services, and integrated supply-chain solutions ensuring seamless global movement of materials.

Together, these segments allow participants to evaluate end-to-end supply-chain solutions, not just individual products.

Spotlight on Sustainability: Special Discussion on the Future of Bio Bitumen

A key highlight of the 2026 edition will be a special, focused discussion on the Future of Bio Bitumen, reflecting the industry's growing shift towards sustainable, low-carbon road construction solutions.

As governments and infrastructure developers worldwide look to reduce emissions and improve environmental performance, bio bitumen is emerging as a critical alternative to conventional binders. The dedicated discussion will explore market readiness, scalability, performance benchmarks, regulatory acceptance, and commercial viability, offering valuable insights for producers, contractors, policymakers, and buyers alike.

This session underscores the event's role not only as a trade platform, but also as a forward-looking industry catalyst, addressing the materials and technologies that will define the next phase of global road construction.
