DOYLESTOWN, PA – Epoch Automotive, an independent auto repair facility serving Bucks County, has acquired updated diagnostic software designed for General Motors vehicles. The updated software allows technicians to interface with GM powertrain systems, electronic control modules, safety technologies, and vehicle communication networks across multiple GM brands. These capabilities improve the identification of drivability issues, electronic faults, and intermittent system concerns commonly found in late-model vehicles.

As vehicle platforms become increasingly software-driven, independent repair facilities must maintain current diagnostic tools to ensure service accuracy. By integrating updated GM-compatible software, the shop provides a local alternative for drivers seeking manufacturer-aligned diagnostics without relying exclusively on dealership service departments.
