

International Humanitarian College London (IHCL) announces key academic appointment - Dr. Yuliia Shyshatska

Dr. Yuliia Shyshatska joins IHCL leadership team

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, January 15, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Reflecting the institution's commitment to academic excellence and global expansion, IHCL is delighted to announce the appointment of Dr. Yuliia Shyshatska as Director of Academic Operations. Dr. Shyshatska joins the UK-based senior leadership team, bringing a strong past record in higher education and academic development to support IHCL's mission of bridging innovation with practice-oriented learning.

Dr. Shyshatska's appointment underscores IHCL's focus on academic quality, rigorous standards, and student success."

Dr. Rod Brazier, MD

The International Humanitarian College London (IHCL) is a flagship joint Ukrainian-British educational collaboration. The college offers accredited Master's programmes and professional short courses, combining innovative learning models with historic classical British academic traditions, with its campus in Bayswater, London.

IHCL's Managing Director and co-founder, Dr. Rod Brazier, a British education specialist with extensive experience in managing leading educational institutions in the United Kingdom explains, "Dr. Shyshatska's appointment underscores IHCL's focus on academic quality, rigorous standards, and student success. In her new role as Director of Academic Operations, she will oversee curriculum design, academic policy, quality assurance, and the enhancement of teaching and learning across all programmes."

The IHCL educational model is built on the principles of innovation, flexibility, and student-centred learning. Programmes include both traditional disciplines – such as psychology, management, and hotel and restaurant business – and innovative courses like Mastering Digital Marketing with AI, AI for Business Professionals, and Strategic Leadership in an AI World, plus courses to teach people how to be a successful 'Digital Nomad'. Dr. Shyshatska said, "Joining IHCL at this pivotal stage of growth in early 2026 is a tremendous privilege. I am inspired by the college's bold vision to integrate cutting-edge learning models with a deep respect for academic tradition. Together with the faculty I will help build, we will ensure that our students receive a transformative education that prepares them for leadership in a rapidly changing world." Dr.

Shyshatska holds a PhD in Law and is a Doctor of Science candidate in International Law, highlighting her rigorous academic foundation and lifelong commitment to research and teaching. She has also completed postgraduate study in education and professional development certifications, including specialised training for external examiners that deepens her expertise in academic integrity, quality assurance, and higher education governance.

Dr. Shyshatska's background spans both teaching and academic leadership, with experience at institutions in the United Kingdom and internationally, that reinforces her qualifications for this strategic role. "The addition of Dr. Shyshatska to our team marks a significant milestone in IHCL's development," added Dr. Serhii Kosianenko, CEO of IHCL. "Her passion for learning, deep understanding of academic systems, and global perspective will be invaluable as we expand our offerings, strengthen academic standards, and deliver impactful experiences for our students."

Studies at IHCL will be available in three formats: on-campus, online, and blended, allowing students to balance education with their professional and personal commitments. Each student receives personalised academic support and professional mentorship from practitioner-lecturers with real industry experience. IHCL has already opened applications for its first intake of master's students. The academic year is scheduled to begin in February 2026, with several enrolment cycles planned throughout the year to provide maximum convenience for applicants from around the world. IHCL welcomes approaches from partner universities wishing to partner.
