

Bishop-Parker Foundation awards more than $4 million to 35 Organizations

Grants to expand housing and employment, mental health, education and animal welfare efforts

BRADENTON, FL, UNITED STATES, January 15, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Nonprofits across Manatee County will strengthen housing opportunities, expand mental health services, protect local wildlife, and enhance educational programs thanks to more than $4.1 million in fall 2025 grants from Bishop-Parker Foundation.

Our 2025 grants focus on basic needs such as access to food and healthcare as well as efforts to improve the local environment through innovative projects”

Thirty-five organizations received funding to advance solutions to a wide range of challenges that partner organizations are working to address across Manatee County. This year's awards support programs that increase access to essential services, invest in long-term community health, and fund projects that preserve and enhance the region's natural and cultural assets.

“Our fall 2025 grants focus on basic needs such as access to food and healthcare as well as efforts to improve the local environment through innovative projects,” said Wendy Deming, CEO of Bishop-Parker Foundation. “We’re also happy to continue Ned and Patty Bishop’s and Mary Parker’s advocacy for animal welfare through grants supporting the care of rescued animals, equine therapy horses, and the local brown pelican population.”

One of the largest awards—a $1 million grant to Community Assisted and Supported Living (CASL)—will support its Legacy Village project, a $27 million inclusive housing and employment community in Bradenton. The four-story, 60-unit development will provide a “live, work, and play” environment designed to empower adults with intellectual and developmental disabilities to live with dignity, independence, and purpose.

“Manatee County faces an acute shortage of affordable housing and limited opportunities for inclusive employment for adults with intellectual and developmental disabilities,” said Scott Eller, CEO of CASL. “Legacy Village residents will receive person-centered planning, vocational assessments, life-skills training, and individualized employment plans through a partnership with Easterseals Southwest Florida. First-floor commercial tenants will provide jobs, training, or volunteer opportunities.”

Animal welfare partners also received meaningful support this cycle. The Humane Society of Manatee County was awarded $160,000 for its Animal Wellness Project, which provides medical care for shelter animals, community-owned pets, feral cats, and animals served by other rescue groups.

A $100,000 grant will support Harvest House in expanding its Wellness Within Reach initiative into Manatee County. The program removes barriers that prevent individuals in addiction recovery from accessing care by delivering free, weekly therapy sessions directly in supportive housing and recovery settings.

“This program has already proven successful in Sarasota, and with Bishop-Parker Foundation’s support, we will bring this life-changing program to Manatee County,” said Dan Minor, CEO and president of Harvest House.

Environmental and mobility improvements also received key support. Trust for Public Land was awarded $50,000 to support the creation of three Manatee County segments of the planned Florida Gulf Coast Trail, which will connect Manatee and Hillsborough counties, and create short, high-impact walking and biking routes serving the Palmetto and Parrish communities. These segments will serve more than 29,000 Manatee County residents within a 10-minute walk and more than 129,000 within a 10-minute bike ride, providing safe, free outdoor recreation and non-motorized transportation.

In total, Bishop-Parker Foundation’s fall 2025 cycle awarded 35 grants totaling $4,165,500 to nonprofits focused on education, health, human services, animal welfare, and environmental stewardship in Manatee County:
