Law firms face a familiar challenge: leads don't arrive neatly between 9 and 5. When a call goes unanswered — or goes to voicemail — potential clients often move to the next firm. Go Answer's AI Receptionist is built to solve that problem by providing fast, consistent, and brand-aligned call handling that supports intake workflows while reducing administrative burden on in-house staff.

"With the legal AI Receptionist, we're giving firms a practical way to deliver immediate responsiveness while maintaining the tone, structure, and intake discipline that legal leads require," said Adam Aloviz, CEO at Go Answer. "It's built to help firms capture more qualified opportunities, create a better first impression, and free up teams to focus on the work that only people can do."

Built for Legal Intake and Case Qualification

Go Answer's AI Receptionist for law firms is designed to support common front-desk and intake needs, including:

- 24/7 call answering and instant response to new inquiries
- Custom intake questions tailored by practice area (e.g., PI, mass tort, criminal defense, family law)
- Lead qualification and routing, including escalation to the right team member
- Appointment setting and scheduling workflows based on firm preferences
- New client information capture (contact details, incident overview, timeline, and more)
- Consistent, brand-aligned conversations using firm-approved scripts and guidelines
- Optional handoff to live agents for complex calls or priority situations

The AI Receptionist can be configured to match a firm's tone, screening criteria, and workflow — helping ensure that every call is handled consistently, even during peaks in volume.
