Following the award ceremony, the International Economic, Trade and Cultural Cooperation Salon was held simultaneously.

Chinese and foreign guests conducted in-depth discussions and exchanges on hot topics such as global industrial innovation, cross-cultural integration, and the development of artificial intelligence education.

The guests all stated that this event not only recognized outstanding contributors in various fields, but also built an important platform for connecting high-quality global resources, injecting new vitality into international economic, trade and cultural cooperation.

Mr. Dai Jian, Vice President of the Beijing NGO Network for International Exchanges and President of the Zhongguancun Social Organization Federation, said:

"The Zhongguancun Haixinlian Emerging Industry Promotion Association (co-organizer of this Salon) takes empowering the high-quality development of emerging industries and fostering new productive forces as its mission, and has built a service system covering resource integration, collaborative innovation and international cooperation, injecting strong impetus into the development of strategic emerging industries.

Global Fred Award and Certification Canada (co-organizer of this Salon) builds a talent evaluation and empowerment platform from a global perspective, focuses on AI application capabilities, provides authoritative endorsement for global elites and outstanding organizations, and has become an important bridge linking international resources.

The strong alliance of the two organizers has made this event integrate China's industrial foundation with international vision, and embody both technical depth and humanistic warmth, which will surely become an industry model for promoting cross-border integration and international cooperation."

The successful holding of the Global Fred Award Ceremony & International Economic, Trade and Cultural Cooperation Salon has witnessed the firm belief of practitioners in various fields around the world to delve deep into their professions, drive innovation and promote win-win cooperation.

In the future, with the convergence of more high-quality resources and the deepening of cooperation, it will surely contribute more to the sustainable development of the global economy and culture.
