A Rare Achievement in the Profession

This recognition is part of an exceptional and enduring track record. For nearly fourteen years, Christophe Barraud has consistently ranked among the top performers in Bloomberg's global forecasting rankings, establishing himself as one of the most reliable and respected macroeconomic forecasters worldwide.

Such longevity is particularly remarkable in a macroeconomic environment characterized by successive financial crises, major geopolitical disruptions, and heightened market volatility.

Bloomberg's recognition highlights the importance of disciplined analysis and independent thinking in delivering reliable macroeconomic forecasts, even in complex global environments.”

Being simultaneously recognized by Bloomberg across three major economic regions represents a rare achievement in the profession. It reflects a unique ability to accurately anticipate global economic dynamics, regardless of cycles, shocks, or regional specificities.

“Being recognized by Bloomberg over time is, above all, the result of rigorous discipline, total analytical independence, and a constant commitment to delivering actionable forecasts, even in the most complex environments. Consistency, in my view, remains the true indicator of performance,” emphasizes Christophe Barraud.

Sought After by the World's Leading Institutional Investors

Year after year, Christophe Barraud continues to strengthen his position as a global benchmark in macroeconomic forecasting. His expertise is widely recognized and sought after by leading institutional investors, including banks, insurance companies, asset managers, hedge funds, pension funds, as well as by numerous international public institutions.

His analyses play an increasingly central role in strategic asset allocation, risk management, and macroeconomic decision-making at the highest levels.

About Christophe Barraud

Christophe Barraud holds a PhD in Economics and a Master's degree in Finance from Université Paris-Dauphine. He advises an international institutional client base composed of banks, insurance companies, asset managers, hedge funds, pension funds, and public organizations.

Highly followed on social media platforms (X/Twitter, LinkedIn), he now reaches more than 200,000 followers worldwide, reflecting the growing influence of his analyses and his increasingly central role in the global macroeconomic debate.
