International Labour Organization
ILO.

International Labour Organization
ILO. The ILO is a specialized agency of the United Nations concerned with issues of employment, decent work and social justice.
It was established in 1919 and has since then been working to promote and defend the rights of workers and employers throughout the world. The ILO is unique in that it is the only international organization that brings together governments, employers and workers to discuss common problems and to develop international standards, conventions and recommendations which are aimed at promoting decent work for all in the 21st century.
The ILO's work is based on the principles of social justice and the promotion of decent work for all. It is committed to achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and to promoting the realization of the ILO's fundamental principles and rights at work.
