In this presentation, Keith Blackborg will outline advanced retirement plan strategies that allow families to invest alongside one another using tools such as discounted rollovers, ROBS structures, and practical entity combinations. He will explain how these strategies can be coordinated to support shared investment goals while maintaining compliance and tax efficiency.

The discussion will explore how different account and entity structures can be combined across family members and the types of investments these structures may hold, including rental real estate, hard-money lending, stocks, bonds, and K-1 income-producing assets. Keith will also address tax-focused considerations, including managing UBIT exposure, related filing requirements, and the use of C-corporation UBIT blockers and LLC holding structures to help manage ownership and distribution tax impacts.

Whether attendees are business owners, self-directed investors, or families seeking a more coordinated approach to wealth building, this webinar is designed to provide clarity around structuring strategies that support long-term financial flexibility.
