Based in Ocala, Florida, Hill plans to continue growing his team and expanding Planet's presence across the region. His experience spans purchase and refinance transactions, including FHA, VA, USDA, renovation, construction, and non-agency lending. He has a strong track record working with first-time homebuyers, self-employed borrowers and veterans, helping clients identify creative paths to affordability through down payment assistance and tailored loan solutions.

“Jeff is the kind of originator who earns trust quickly with real estate agents, builders and with borrowers,” said Vincent Ortiz, Southeast Area Sales Manager, at Planet Home Lending. “He understands strong relationships and solid upfront work are what drive long-term success, and we're excited to support his growth at Planet."

Planet's broad product lineup and commitment to retaining servicing allow Hill to support clients well beyond the closing table, offering stability and continuity throughout the homeownership journey.

"Jeff's mindset aligns perfectly with Planet's mission," said Matt Payan, SVP, National Production, Distributed Retail. "He focuses on education, accountability and finding solutions where others might stop. That approach helps expand access to homeownership and strengthens the communities we serve."

Beyond his work in mortgage lending, Hill has lived Planet's We'll Get You Home philosophy in a deeply personal way, opening the home he and his wife share to more than 80 foster children over the years. That commitment to stability, care and long-term impact mirrors the way he approaches serving borrowers and his community.
