From home goods and wearable art to handcrafted jewelry and body care rooted in tradition, ArtFest is where culture meets everyday living. Alongside fashion showcases and interactive cultural programming, ArtFest offers direct access to artists while creating real economic opportunity, cultural exchange, and a space for community to gather, connect, and be seen.

PAFF will also present a robust lineup of free and accessible community programming, including free panels spotlighting the business, craft, and future of filmmaking with industry leaders, a free children's festival, complimentary screenings for seniors, a comedy show, a curated spoken word performance, book signings, and a wide range of culturally relevant events designed to engage audiences of all ages. Together, these offerings reflect PAFF's commitment to community, creativity, and celebrating the breadth of Black culture beyond the screen.

For more than three decades, PAFF has remained a vital platform for emerging and established filmmakers and artists from across the African diaspora, offering audiences bold storytelling and a cultural celebration that reflect the complexity and brilliance of Black life worldwide.
