

The Addictions Academy Launches Giving Back Program Turning Parental Loss Into Lifesaving Impact

Limited-enrollment program provides approved parents access to professional recovery-focused certification training at no cost.

LOS ANGELES, CA, UNITED STATES, February 6, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Addictions Academy® today announced the launch of its Giving Back Program, a powerful new initiative created for parents who have lost a child to addiction and feel called to transform devastating loss into meaningful action by helping others find recovery.

Designed for bereaved parents seeking purpose after tragedy, the Giving Back Program provides approved participants with access to professional certification training at no cost, offering a clear, supported pathway to turn lived experience into service within the addiction recovery and behavioral health field.

“

I am proud to share that I am now a Certified Family Recovery Coach. I earned this in memory of my son, whom we lost to fentanyl poisoning nearly four years ago.”

Tekla Johnson

“This program exists because some parents, even in their deepest grief, feel called to prevent another family from experiencing the same loss,” said Dr. Cali Estes, Founder of The Addictions Academy. “The Giving Back Program honors that courage by providing education, structure, and a way forward.”

Participation in the Giving Back Program is limited and requires an application and approval process.

Program Participation Process:

Applicants must submit an application for consideration at:

<https://theadddictionsacademy.com/giving-back>

Participants may select one of the following certification programs:

Intervention Professional Program
Family Recovery Coach Program

The Giving Back Program is offered on a limited basis to reach parents who are ready to channel grief into healing, advocacy, and lifesaving work.

Jenna James and her son BAM

Parents who believe they may qualify or would like additional information are encouraged to apply directly through The Addictions Academy.
