Former Board of Veterans Appeals Attorney Now Fighting for Veterans

I am honored to join Berry Law and use my experience to help Veterans navigate the process and secure the benefits they have earned through their service.”

Nichole Keddington

Nichole earned her B.A. from Brigham Young University and her Juris Doctor from George Mason University. Before entering private practice, she worked on Capitol Hill. This experience gave her valuable insight into the development and interpretation of federal law.

Nichole later served at the Board of Veterans Appeals, where she reviewed Veterans benefits claims, analyzed medical and service records, and drafted appellate decisions for hundreds of Veterans. As a result, she gained in-depth knowledge of the VA adjudication system and the legal standards governing Veterans benefits claims. Now, she uses that experience to advocate for Veterans on the other side of the process.

A Commitment to Veterans and Their Families

"Having worked at the Board of Veterans Appeals, I saw firsthand how complex and frustrating the VA system can be for Veterans," said Nichole Keddington. "I am honored to join Berry Law and use my experience to help Veterans navigate the process and secure the benefits they have earned through their service." Jerusha Hancock, Chief of Legal Operations at Berry Law, welcomed Nichole to the firm. "Nichole's experience at the Board of Veterans Appeals gives her a unique perspective that will benefit our clients," she said. "She knows how the VA evaluates claims from the inside, and that knowledge is invaluable when fighting for Veterans. We are proud to have her on our team."

Berry Law: Veterans Disability Attorneys Fighting for Those Who Served
