

Kickbox Leasing Supports University Programs With Flexible Modular Facilities

Modular facility solutions provide adaptable, short-term space for campus and programmatic needs.

LUBBOCK, TX, UNITED STATES,
February 10, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/
-- Kickbox Leasing, LLC, a Texas-based provider of modular and container-based facility solutions, is supporting multiple Texas Tech University programs through flexible, short-term modular deployments under an existing Indefinite Delivery, Indefinite Quantity (IDIQ) contract.

The logo for Kickbox Container People features the word "Kickbox" in a large, blue, hand-drawn style font. Below it, the words "Container People" are in a smaller, black, sans-serif font. To the right of "Container People" is a small blue icon of a container with a door.

Recent activity has included the delivery of specialized modular facilities designed to support a variety of campus and programmatic needs. These deployments have included customized container solutions with integrated restroom facilities, temporary office space, and event-specific support structures, demonstrating the adaptability of modular facilities in dynamic university environments.

The modular units were provided on a short-term lease basis and configured to meet specific functional requirements, allowing university programs to scale space as needed for seasonal activities, events, and temporary operational demands.

Kickbox Leasing’s participation in Texas Tech University’s IDIQ framework allows approved departments to procure modular facilities efficiently while maintaining compliance with institutional purchasing standards. This approach supports rapid deployment and operational continuity across a range of use cases.

With a focus on safety, durability, and responsive service, Kickbox Leasing continues to support public-sector and institutional clients throughout Texas with modular solutions for education, athletics, public safety, and specialized operational applications.
