leadership-giving community that helps expand the reach, stability, and long-term impact of Masonic charity.

“The leadership of the Phoenix Society brings our Masonic values of faith, hope, and charity to life—caring for children, uplifting our aging members, and investing in the next generation through educational opportunity,” said Marut. “This generosity strengthens our capacity to respond when a brother or sister is in need, sustain essential outreach across the state, and support the enduring charitable commitments that help North Carolina families and communities.”

Poindexter noted that the recognition reflects a broader commitment to values-driven service and durable community support. “I have supported the North Carolina Masonic Foundation and the important work it does for over fifteen years. It is my honor to partner with people who put “love thy neighbor” front and center,” said Poindexter. “Philanthropy should be intentional and lasting—supporting people in the moment of need while also building long-term strength for future needs. I do that personally, and I coordinate enterprise-wide giving through the Carlyle Poindexter Charitable Foundation.”
