This song has an edge to it. It's beautiful, yes, but it's also very straightforward. Telling someone I don't want to see you beg, but I don't mind seeing you cry is powerful.”

Written by Señoj, the single is now streaming on all major digital platforms. The lyric visualizer offers an intimate and artistic experience, showcasing the talented multi-instrumentalist performing the song with passion and authenticity. In the visual, Señoj is seen playing the keyboards, highlighting her musicianship and classical training. A phenomenal guitarist as well, she continues to distinguish herself as a true artist who not only sings but skillfully brings her music to life through live instrumentation.

“This song has an edge to it. It's beautiful, yes, but it's also very straightforward,” shares Señoj. “Telling someone I don't want to see you beg, but I don't mind seeing you cry is powerful. It gives me my power back from a dynamic that just wasn't on equal playing grounds. The song shows I've had enough.”

Co-produced with industry heavyweight Slikk, a multi-platinum, multi-GRAMMY-winning producer known for his work with Chris Brown, Lil Wayne, and Tamela Mann, “CRY” blends lush harmonies and contemporary R&B/Pop production with Señoj's signature emotive vocals, further elevating her growing presence in today's evolving music landscape.

Señoj first garnered major attention with her breakout track “Running,” which was highlighted by SoundCloud. The platform named her a “new pop diva,” praising her “alluring style of modish R&B” and celebrating her vocals as “the perfect tone for a contemporary pop song,” drawing comparisons to Ariana Grande, NAO, and Sinéad Harnett.

A classically trained pianist and vocalist, Señoj continues expanding her artistry beyond music. She made her acting debut in the 2023 independent film Pressure, starring as Rachel, a young woman navigating life-altering decisions. The film earned “Fan Favorite” honors at a Charlotte, North Carolina film festival. Her music has also reached the big screen, with her track “Leave It Alone” featured in the Amazon Prime Video film The Morning After.

Beyond entertainment, Señoj is a thriving entrepreneur and co-owner of The Naked Bar, an Atlanta-based vegan dessert company. She has graced prominent stages such as the Black College Expo Tour and is a recipient of the Ella Fitzgerald Songwriters Scholarship at the Grammy Songwriter’s Camp.

Señoj also recently released her empowering single “OK,” further highlighting her artistry, confidence, and commanding presence within R&B/Pop.

Fans can stream “CRY” now on all major platforms and watch the official lyric visualizer online.
