-- Helping Schools, Students, and Parents Access Scholarships and
Grants with Expertise and Care

Elizabeth Wolff is an accomplished scholarship manager and the Founder of Florida Grant and Scholarship Solutions (FLGSS), providing expert support to schools and educational programs across Florida. With over a decade of experience in the private school sector, Elizabeth has held leadership roles ranging from elementary school administration to high school office manager, and she has also contributed at Teach Florida.

Her extensive background in school operations equips her with a comprehensive understanding of the financial, administrative, and compliance needs of private educational institutions and school choice programs.

Through FLGSS, Elizabeth focuses on supporting schools, tutors, microschools, preschools, afterschool programs, and other school choice initiatives with scholarships and specialized grant management. She specializes in scholarship management and tracking while adhering to schools' budgets, ensuring that institutions can dedicate more resources directly to their students. Her expertise extends to Department of Education compliance, including VPK and School Readiness guidance, zoning regulations, inspections, and the requirements for opening a new school. In both 2023 and 2024, she received certification from Broward County for "Steps to Open a Child Care Facility," underscoring her ability to guide new preschools in Broward, Palm Beach, and Miami-Dade counties.

Elizabeth's mission is to help schools and programs secure every available funding source, from Step Up for Students, AAA, and other SFO scholarship programs to specialized security grants for Jewish Day Schools and nonprofit organizations at high risk of targeted attacks. Through her remote support model, she allows schools to access professional scholarship and grant management without the high cost of an on-site coordinator.

Elizabeth attributes her success to her deep passion for helping children, their parents, and schools by providing excellent and affordable scholarship management and financial educational opportunities. She believes her drive to make a meaningful difference inspired her to create this role for herself, allowing her to positively impact not only her community but others as well.

The best career advice Elizabeth has received is that she is stronger and smarter than she thinks. She believes that by trusting her instincts and following her gut, she can achieve anything she sets out to accomplish.

For young women entering her industry, Elizabeth advises always remembering that they play a meaningful, powerful role. She emphasizes that helping schools, students, and parents simultaneously can create a significant impact and truly change lives.

Elizabeth identifies one of the biggest challenges in her field is the uncertainty of scholarship and grant funding. She notes that funding can be increased, decreased, or even become unavailable, which requires careful navigation. At the same time, she recognizes opportunities in the growing availability of scholarships and grants, which can help create new school choice programs across the United States.

The values guiding Elizabeth in both her professional and personal life include being healthy and present for her family and friends, while consistently delivering high-quality service to her clients. She achieves this by offering her expertise at a reasonable cost and continuously finding ways to make a meaningful difference.

Known for her attention to detail, confidentiality, and organizational skills, Elizabeth Wolff is a trusted partner for educational institutions seeking sustainable, efficient scholarship management solutions that empower students and support schools' long-term success.
