NEW YORK, NY, UNITED STATES, March 3, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Consuelo Vanderbilt Costin will bring her SohoMuse Platform to B. Wright Leadership Academy in Miami on Thursday, March 5th, launching the school's new Consuelo Vanderbilt Costin Girls Leadership Outreach Program, an initiative designed to put students in direct contact with mentors and guest speakers from a wide range of professional and personal backgrounds.

The program launch is set at the B. Wright Leadership Academy, a private K-12 school that describes its mission as providing a safe and nurturing environment while promoting students' social, emotional, physical, technology, and cognitive development, with a strong emphasis on arts and technology. The school also positions itself as an education change agent focused on bridging learning gaps and expanding access to high quality education for underserved and challenged communities.

The Consuelo Vanderbilt Costin Girls Leadership Outreach Program is structured as a yearlong enrichment syllabus for a small cohort of girls in grades 5 through 8, designed to build confidence, character, academic habits, wellness skills, and service minded citizenship through a clear monthly rhythm and milestone experiences. relationships, and practical life skills such as financial literacy and entrepreneurship, before transitioning into leadership in action and career and STEM exposure. The program culminates in a capstone, where students choose either a service leadership project or a micro business pitch, then refine their work with mentor feedback and present at a showcase that recognizes growth, effort, and leadership potential.

Vanderbilt Costin's Miami appearance connects her education focused work with the larger ethos of SohoMuseWorld, the platform's university centered initiative built to help young creative talent find internships and job opportunities, mentorship programs, networking opportunities, and education offerings. In the SohoMuseWorld framework, stem creative industry professionals through MuseMaster courses, described as interactive live or prerecorded webinars that deliver real world industry insight and mentorship.

At the heart of the new program championed by Consuelo is access: access to people who have built careers, launched ventures, served communities, and navigated obstacles, and access to the practical knowledge that helps students translate ambition into a plan. That "direct connection" approach mirrors the platform's broader promise to help emerging talent expand connections, find work, learn from professionals and professors, and pursue creative passions in a secure and trusted environment.

Also attending the launch will be H.E. Ambassador David Xavier Sanchez, Ambassador and Permanent Representative of the International Youth Organization to the United Nations, underscoring the program's emphasis on global awareness, civic engagement, and leadership that extends beyond the classroom. Organizers said the Miami event builds on Vanderbilt Costin's prior work convening and championing members of the Latin community, including her earlier Latin Ignition programming in New York.
