Directory (dentalpodcast.org), the dental profession’s most comprehensive archive of podcast content, today announced that its searchable database has surpassed 37,000 cataloged episodes across 329 dental-specific podcasts. The milestone underscores the platform’s decade-long commitment to organizing and making accessible the rapidly expanding universe of dental audio content.

Why a Searchable Dental Podcast Directory Matters

Podcasting has become one of the most important channels for continuing education and professional development in dentistry. Dental professionals increasingly turn to podcasts for clinical updates, practice management strategies, industry news, and peer-to-peer knowledge sharing. However, the sheer volume of content available—spanning tens of thousands of hours across hundreds of shows—creates a significant discovery problem.

Without a centralized, searchable directory, dental professionals are left to navigate a fragmented landscape across multiple podcast platforms, often unaware that content directly relevant to their clinical questions, specialty interests, or business challenges already exists. Valuable episodes on topics from implant protocols to insurance reimbursement strategies may go undiscovered simply because no single platform had organized them in one place—until now.

“The dental profession produces an extraordinary amount of high-quality audio content, but discoverability has always been the bottleneck,” said Dr. Chance Bodini, founder of the Dental Podcast Directory. “Our goal since 2015 has been to make sure that when a dentist, hygienist, or practice manager needs information, they can find a relevant episode in a few seconds”

By the Numbers

The Dental Podcast Directory's current scope reflects its standing as the definitive resource for dental audio content. The platform now houses more than 37,000 searchable episodes drawn from 329 dental-specific podcasts, covering every major area of the profession including clinical dentistry, practice management, dental technology, public health, specialty disciplines, and industry news. In addition, the Directory's Guest Directory features more than 90 searchable guest profiles, providing podcast hosts and guest a convenient platform to connect.

Looking Ahead

The Dental Podcast Directory continues to expand its features and catalog. Recent additions include the Random Episode Discovery tool, which helps users surface content from deep within the archive, ongoing expansion of the Guest Directory, and improvements to its thrice weekly newsletter. The platform remains free to access for all dental professionals and podcast listeners.
